TEN MEMBERS OF AMERICAN FAMILY IN GREAT DANGER

Smiths Who Worsted Mexicans at Tonalla Arrested and Sent to Jail.

FEDERALS LOSE AT ACAPONETA

Vanguard of Rebel Forces at Durango Starts Its March to Capture Saltillo and Zacatecas; Consul Reports Refugees are Returning to Sonora.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Ten members of the Smith family in jail at Tonalla, Chiapas, are in danger of their lives because of Mexican resentment of their part in the recent killing of three Mexicans at San Pedro, according to a report today from Minister Leavell in Guatemala.

The Mexicans were members of a rural guard and invaded the Smith home to disarm the occupants. In the fight which ensued the Mexicans were worsted, but the Americans were later arrested

Confirmation of the capture of the entire Federal garrison at Acaponeta, Tepic, by the rebel forces reached the State Department today in a report from Consular Agent Keyes.

The vanguard of the rebel forces at Durango and Torreon has started on its march to begin the capture of Saltillo and Zacatecas, according to a report received at the State Department today from Consul Hanna at Durango.

American Consular Agent Montague has reopened the American consulate at Tamahua, Sonora, according to a report today from Consul Simpich. He also reports that 50 American refugees have returned to Cananea and that the movement of American refugees from the south has ceased.

The State Department announced this afternoon that the Brazilian legation in Mexico City had reported a train bearing 500 and 600 refugees from Mexico City left for Vera Cruz. The train was in three sections under the Brazilian flag and among the refugees was Dr. Edward Ryan, special representative of the American Red Cross Society, who had been held by Huerta authorities.

"Some smallpox prevails but the city is in fair sanitary condition and very healthy at present" is the substance of a telegram from Charles Robinson who has arrived in Vera Cruz and taken charge of the Red Cross work. He is apprehensive, however, of more sickness with the coming of the rainy season and has asked for large supplies of quinine and typhoid and smallpox vaccine virus. While his urgent work is to facilitate the departure of refugees.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Nelson O'Shaughnessy, charge of the American embassy at Mexico City until United States troops seized Vera Cruz arrived here early today. With his family he was driven to a hotel and planned to confer with Secretary Bryan later.

Misfortune followed Mr. O'Shaughnessy even to the end of his home government. Having lost most of his personal possessions when Mexicans looted his trunks outside of Vera Cruz, he is more of his personal belongings en route from New Orleans to Washington. His baggage could not be located when he arrived here but he expected it will be traced. In consequence of his bad luck, O'Shaughnessy's first act here was to hunt up a haberdasher shop. He was then besieged by interviewers, dropped in on a few old friends at the Metropolitan Club and at 10:30 went to the State Department and conferred with Secretary Bryan.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Ammunition to supply the field artillery of the organized militia has been ordered manufactured at the Frankford Arsenal by General Crozier, chief of ordinance. The order was for 170,000 rounds of ammunition for three-inch field guns. This amount will give the 63 batteries of field artillery in the militia about one-half of their full complement of shells.

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—Orders for 12,000 three-inch shrappel shells were received at the Frankford Arsenal in this city from Secretary Garrison of the War Department. The plant will be run 24 hours a day, the men working in shifts of eight hours each.

ON BOARD U. S. CALIFORNIA, Mazatlan, Mexico, by Wireless to San Diego, Cal., May 7.—Four persons were killed and eight were injured by the explosion of a bomb that was dropped into the streets from a rebel biplane. Firing between the rebel and Federal fortifications continues and in the artillery duel the besiegers have had the better of it so far.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—One American and two British subjects have been killed in the mines in the vicinity of Guadalajara. A Mr. Ramsdell, presumably a British subject and seven Americans are cut off by bandits in the vicinity. Other Americans are safe.

This information came in a dispatch from the British vice consul at Guadalajara today. The dispatch was sent in response to an inquiry about conditions at the Cinco Minas mine and the safety of Americans there. It reads: "Bullion buried; concentrate stored. Both safe; Americans all safe.

ALLEGING DISCRIMINATION PENNSY FREIGHT MEN STRIKE

Federated Brotherhoods Claim Members Were Laid Off Under Retrenchment Order.

By Associated Press.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., May 7.—Trackmen and freight handlers at a number of points on the Williamsport division of the Pennsylvania & Northern Central railroads quit work today when a strike was ordered by the Brotherhood of Federated Employes.

Fifty freight handlers went out in this city. The freight station was kept open with new men employed. A number of trackmen struck at Lock Haven. The men alleged that the railroad discriminated against the Federation in laying off men under a recent retrenchment order.

HARRISBURG, May 7.—In response to an order issued last night by the Brotherhood of Federated Employes calling a strike on the Pennsylvania system chopmen struck today.

A statement issued by the railroad said that 200 men "had left the service of the company." Brotherhood officials claim 2,000 are on strike. Officials of the State Department of Labor and Industry are trying to bring about a settlement.

SURVIVORS LANDED

Thirteen Members of Columbia's Crew Arrive in Boston.

By Associated Press.

BOSTON, May 7.—When the Cunard liner Franconia from Liverpool arrived today bringing 13 members of the crew of the burned steamer Columbia rescued from a boat south of Sable Island, several of the survivors were suffering from burns and all showed the effects of exposure. The body of Chief Steward Matthews also was bought in by the Franconia.

James Dorhan, the wireless operator of the Columbia, expressed the opinion that spontaneous combustion in the cargo of rags and junk caused the fire. He said he was awakened by an explosion shortly before midnight and when he went on deck the vessel was in flames. The salon passengers on the Franconia assisted the survivors.

COLONEL LOST WEIGHT.

Roosevelt to Attack British Explorer's Statements.

PARA, Brazil, May 7.—Colonel Roosevelt, during his exploring trip through the wilds of Brazil, lost over 55 pounds in weight. He was still very weak today, but his condition was better and he is recovering from the abscess on his leg, from which he suffered after bruising himself while working on a canoe in the rapids of the Duvida river.

It is his intention to deliver a lecture before the Royal Geographical Society in London, when, it is said, he will controvert the accuracy of some of the affirmations of A. Henry Savage Landor, the British explorer, in regard to the interior of Brazil, which was traversed by Mr. Landor in 1910-12.

REPORTERS APPEAL CASE.

Want to Determine If They Must Reveal Informants.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Whether newspaper reporters and editors may be compelled to reveal the source of their information will be determined by the Supreme Court in a case filed with it today.

It is an appeal by George Burdick and William Curtin of the New York Tribune who were held in contempt of court for refusing to divulge the source of their newspaper articles about a grand jury investigation in a smuggling case.

Congressman Ousted.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The House election committee filed in the House today a report which declared that Representative Dwyer of Missouri, Republican, illegally holds his seat in Congress. The case was contested by L. C. Gill, Democrat.

To Build Residence.

Ground has been broken on West Green street for a brick veneered residence to be erected by Roy Hoover, a Baltimore & Ohio dispatcher.

One American and two British killed in mines at Guadalajara. Ramsdell and seven Americans cut off by bandits." The dispatch did not mention the names of those killed.

Disquieting news was also received from Tampico. Both Federals and Constitutionalists threaten to interfere with British and American oil district workers.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Representatives of practically every oil interest in Mexico gathered in New York today to attend a meeting called for tonight when the Mexican situation will be discussed. It is understood that the consensus of opinion is that oil workers should be returned to work under the protection and guarantees from Federal and Constitutionalists in Mexico.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—President Wilson found time in the midst of wedding preliminary festivities at the White House to confer with Secretary of State Bryan for a few minutes on the Mexican crisis with particular reference to mediation.

Secretary Bryan announced afterward that American delegates to confer with the mediators had not yet been selected but that representative or representatives surely would be designated and that the selection soon would be made. Whether there would be more than one American was still undecided, he said.

PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER WEDS SECRETARY M'ADOO AT 6

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—With a plain circlet of pure gold, typical of the quiet elegance of the ceremony, Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, youngest daughter of the President of the United States and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, will be married at 6 o'clock this evening in the White House, to William Gibbs McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury.

The simple and impressive wedding service of the Presbyterian Church will be pronounced by the Rev. Sylvester Beach, pastor of the church in Princeton, N. J., attended by the President and Mrs. Wilson and their family. The ceremony, while it is to be notably elegant in all of its appointments, will be witnessed by the smallest company that ever attended so important a function in the White House. The Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, the members of the Cabinet and their wives, relatives of the President and Mrs. Wilson, and of Secretary McAdoo, and a few intimate personal friends of the bride and bridegroom, comprise the list of guests.

The ceremony of this evening takes place in the historic Blue Room, the middle apartment of the suite on the south side of the White House, between the East Room and the State dining room. It has been the scene of more brilliant social functions than any other room in the White House.

FLORENCE MINE VICTIM WAS MURDER CASE WITNESS

Miner Killed Was to Testify Regarding Killing of Boswell Man in Somerset Court.

In the death of Antonio Pallustine, the Italian who was killed Monday in an accident at the Florence mine, near Dawson, an important witness in the trial of five Italians of Boswell, charged with the murder of DeFrankos of Boswell, has been lost.

Pallustine was married to a sister of DeFrankos and is said to have known considerable about the murder, which was committed in Boswell several months ago. He had been employed at Boswell, and following the tragedy he left Boswell because he feared that friends of the five men under arrest might kill him in order that he could not appear at the trial in the capacity of a witness. The body of Pallustine was removed this morning from Funeral Director J. H. Parkhill's establishment at Dawson to the Catholic cemetery at Dawson for interment.

MADE STORE MANAGER.

Former Greenwood Man Secures Good Position.

Frank C. Johnson, former salesman for the store of Miss Florence Smutz, and a former well known resident of Greenwood, has been made the manager of the grocery department of the W. & H. Walker Company of Pittsburg, one of the largest establishments of the kind in the state.

He will have complete charge of everything in this department, including buying, packing and correspondence.

STAUFFER BOY IN BATTLE.

C. L. Shaffer Is Sailor on Board U. S. Battleship Florida.

A. M. Shaffer of Stauffer is in receipt of a letter from his son C. L. Shaffer who is aboard the United States battleship Florida, and who participated in the capture of Vera Cruz.

One of his shipmates was killed in the battle. Young Shaffer gives an interesting account of the occupation of that city.

LAKE STEAMER BURNS

Crew Escapes in Boats When Hulk Is Beached.

By Associated Press.

ERIE, Pa., May 7.—The steel freight steamer City of Rome, bound from Buffalo to Toledo, was burned to the water edge off Ripley, N. Y., early today. The crew escaped in boats.

The fire was discovered between decks shortly after midnight by Mate John McManamara of Cleveland and all hands were summoned to fight the flames. After a two hour struggle in which the crew was hampered by the dense smoke and the heat, Captain William Dunn gave orders to beach the vessel. Thomas Cunningham of Milwaukee, chief engineer, stuck to his post until the ship grounded on the Ripley beach. The crew then made its way to shore in lifeboats.

The City of Rome left Buffalo light last night for Toledo where she was to load coal for Milwaukee. She was a steel steamer of 3,000 gross tons, 263 feet long and carried a crew of 16 men.

RAZE OLD LANDMARK

Old Kane House Stood for 100 Years on South First Street.

Work was commenced this morning on razing the old Kane building, one of the oldest landmarks of the West Side. The building was a frame structure built on the old Colonial style and has stood for about 100 years on South First street.

The property was purchased by J. B. Henderson of Vanderbilt at the executor's sale at the death of the last member of the Kane family in Uniontown, for the sum of $2,700. It has been handed from one generation to the other of the Kanes and for some time past has been unoccupied. Following its removal Mr. Henderson expects to erect several modern dwelling houses on the lots.

COUNCIL BELIEVES SEALER OF WEIGHTS IS TOO EXPENSIVE

Wants County and City Offices Combined in One Man.

ASKS MAYOR TO INVESTIGATE

Mayor's Appointment of Joseph Bryner Not Confirmed Because It Is Claimed Cost Would be Too Great; Settlement Made in Damage Claim.

Opposition to the appointment of a city sealer of weights and measures at a salary of $1,000 a year showed itself at last night's meeting of council when a resolution was introduced by Councilman Gans requesting the mayor to interview the county commissioners as to whether Fayette county and Connellsville city could not be combined in one district and the county sealer look after the work here.

Councilman Gans' resolution was not pushed as the mayor asked that it lay over until he had time to see the commissioners and talk the matter over with them. Mr. Gans stated that his move was purely one in the interests of economy. He said that if the two offices could be combined it would mean a considerable saving and he pointed out that the act under which the mayor appointed Joseph Bryner several weeks ago allows the county and city to combine in having the weights and measures inspected by one official. According to Mr. Gans' estimate, it would cost the city at least $1,500 for the maintenance of this office the first year—$1,000 for salary, and $500 for apparatus and expenses.

The mayor declared that he thought the work could be done more efficiently by having a separate office.

A long discussion of what damages should be paid to William Sanner of Snyder street whose property was damaged by the change of grade during the paving of that thoroughfare followed the report of the viewers. Robert Norris, J. Donald Porter and W. D. McGinnis. The latter estimated that Mr. Sanner's property was worth $1,450 before the paving and $1,000 afterward and recommended that he be paid $450, or $400 and the property filled in by the city. A resolution was finally adopted agreeing to pay Mr. Sanner $400 less $128 due him for his share of the paving, and to fill in his property with not more than 165 yards of earth provided he surrenders a full release to the city.

Three ordinances submitted by R. S. Matthews providing for the establishment of the west boundary line of Isabella street preparatory to making it a 40-foot street, providing for a change of grade on that street; and providing for the paving of the city's portion, passed first reading. A remonstrance from property owners along the street was filed at the same time.

At the advice of Solicitor Higbee the clerk was directed to post notices on Isabella road and on Marietta avenue calling upon property owners to appear before council on Thursday, May 21, to bring up any protests against the changing of grades on these streets. The petition for the grading of Marietta avenue was signed by three property owners.

A committee from the Immaculate Conception Church presented a protest against the collection of outstanding claims against the congregation for paving in front of the church property. It is claimed that the borough decided to exonerate them from payment of the claim. Solicitor Higbee was directed to investigate and submit a written opinion to council.

An ordinance was submitted giving the West Penn Railways Company the right to install sidings on Green street and East Main street if they are found necessary at some future time, providing the present tracks are torn up and the paving replaced properly.

An amendment to the penal ordinance providing that when any patrolman shall be designated as plain clothes officer, he shall be paid $70 a month, was passed. The previous plain clothes man received $90.

The committee that examined the exoneration list of C. M. Miller submitted a report showing that the unpaid taxes amounted to $357.12 in 1909 and $515.93 in 1910, offset by exonerations of $190.89 in 1909 and $421 in 1910., leaving a balance of $217.80 due the city.

An ordinance fixing a fee of $10 for tapping a sewer, and providing that where two houses are connected by a single tap, each owner shall pay the $10 fee, was passed on first reading.

The sidewalk ordinance was passed finally, amended to provide that the wearing course shall be three-fourths of an inch thick with a sprinkling of granite or bluestone dust. Where sidewalks have been laid in the residence districts the new pavements shall be made to conform.

The city engineer was instructed to prepare a memorandum of the necessary repairs and improvements to streets.

Patrolman Elder who was suspended for inefficiency by Chief Bowers, was given a hearing, but his suspension was sustained by both the mayor and council as a whole.

A resolution introduced by Councilman Hooper, calls upon the gas and water companies to repair the defects in Fairview avenue caused by

WOMAN PRISONER'S HUNGER STRIKE WORRIES POLICE

Mary Refuses to Eat for a Whole Day; Friend Pays Her Fine and Has Her Released.

The police department was in a quandary yesterday when one of the women prisoners, emulating Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and her English militants, went on a hunger strike and absolutely refused to partake of the delectable morsels set before her by the turnkeys. The situation threatened to become alarming for the girl was in for ten days and in that time she might have done herself considerable harm, but a friend of the hunger striker came to her rescue last night and paying her fine of $10 secured her release. Thus the police were relieved of the necessity of forcible feeding and the prisoner retained her hefty proportions.

Mary was arrested on Tuesday night on a charge of street-walking and Mayor Marietta sentenced her to ten days in the lockup, despite her promises to do better in the future. This was the longest lockup sentence ever imposed upon a woman here, but she was an old offender. Finding that she was destined to serve time, she pleaded that her name be kept out of the papers.

When locked up the girl refused to eat the buns placed before her by the patrolmen. Two buns for breakfast, four for dinner and two for luncheon remained untouched, tempting as they were, accompanied by all the clear, sparkling wet water she could drink. No indeed, it was a hunger strike for Mary, and that was all there was to it.

Patrolman Joe Murphy who has charge of the commissary department in daytime was worried and Chief Bowers started to read up about how the English jail authorities forcibly fed the women who refused to eat. It was a pretty momentous problem to solve, but the troubled skies cleared away when Mary's friend appeared and solemnly paid over the $10 necessary to secure her release.

LAYOFF DAY MEANS WORK

Water Man at Banning Puts Damper on Plans for Day's Vacation.

Yesterday was supposed to be layoff day at the Banning works, near Dawson. Everybody understood that there was to be no work but the water man. He arrived as usual in the morning and turned the hose on the burning ovens.

When the mistake was discovered there was a scramble to get the coke drawers out to draw the coke from the ovens. Instead of a layoff day, the men found themselves in the yards working much the same as usual and all because the man who plies the hose had not understood that there was no work.

It was a good joke on everybody concerned, except those who had to hustle down and get to the yards and draw the ovens.

BLAME COLORADO MILITIA.

Women Place Responsibility for Ludlow Battle.

By Associated Press.

DENVER, Col., May 7.—Major P. J. Hamrock Lieutenant Linderfelt and the home guard militia detachment under them are charged with the responsibility for the Ludlow battle and fire which cost 21 lives, in the report of the Women's Peace League Committee submitted to Governor Ammons today.

The committee was named at a women's mass meeting held in the capitol to insist that the Governor appeal to President Wilson for Federal troops. Equipped with passports the members visited the Trinidad and Ludlow districts and made a personal investigation.

SEVEN JURORS SECURED.

Two More Accepted at Forenoon Session of Becker Trial.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Two more jurors bringing the number up to seven were chosen today at the forenoon session of the trial of Former Police Lieutenant Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal. The sixth man in the box was D. W. Custer, the seventh Ambrose Furley. Many Talesmen were accepted only to be challenged by the defense. If Becker shook his head. Mrs. Becker, again dressed in black, was behind her husband. The crowd that clamored for admission was even larger than that of yesterday.

IDENTIFY ASSAILANT.

Companion of Dove Girl Points Out Nick Former.

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, May 7.—Elizabeth Klimeck, who was gathering violets with Florence Dove near North Braddock late Tuesday when the child was assaulted and brutally murdered, today identified Nick Former as the assailant.

Former who is known by a number of other names, was arrested yesterday and carefully guarded. The funeral of Florence Dove took place today.

Jailed for 30 Days.

Chief of Police William Bowers took George Williams, 54, of Mount Braddock, to the county prison where he will stay for 30 days, having been committed by the mayor this morning.

WILL COST NEARLY $93,000 TO OPERATE CITY REST OF YEAR

Appropriation Ordinance Calls for $92,314.33 Until Next January.

FUND FOR WATERWORKS DATA

Sum of $500 is Set Aside for Collection of Data on This Subject; Board of Health Receives $1,200 and Library $2,100; Detailed List Given.

According to the appropriation ordinance submitted to council for first reading, it will cost $92,314.33 to operate the various departments of the city for the nine months beginning April 1 and ending December 31. The estimate is based upon the figures compiled by Superintendent of Accounts John L. Gans and it includes practically every possible expenditure that may have to be made. In the budget is included a Board of Health account of $1,200, which is considered in excess of what the board asked for and may mean the purchase of apparatus which is so badly needed.

The Carnegie Library fund is placed at $2,100. The sum of $500 is set aside for the collection of data regarding the feasibility of a municipal water work, indicating that council believes that this step will eventually have to be taken.

HOW TO GET RID OF DYSPEPSIA

Don't Rely on Medicine; Don't Go on Fresh Diet; Common Sense and an Antacid Usually All That Are Needed.

"If you have dyspepsia, indigestion, sour stomach, belching, distress after eating, heartburn or any other stomach trouble due to hyperacidity (too much excess of stomach troubles), you should take no medicine to act upon the stomach itself. That is positively not the way to cure the trouble. Again you should not half starve yourself by going without the nutritious food that you need to rebuild waste tissues. Some foods are not good for people even when in perfect health—very rich sauces, highly seasoned dishes. Avoid these, but eat fairly substantial meals of plain foods. Eat slowly. Even if you drink nothing but water you should not drink with meal. Drink before and after eating. Do not take pepsin or other artificial digestants. If you follow the foregoing simple instructions it is probable that you will not need any medicine at all except if you want to call it medicine a little antacid after meal. The best antacid is ordinary bisurated magnesia, which can be purchased at any drug store. This is not to act upon the stomach but on the contents of the stomach. The antacid we can learn by consulting your dictionary or encyclopedia is merely to neutralize or counteract the excess acid so the stomach can digest the food normally. Take a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little cold or hot water after each meal. You should get immediate relief even if your case is severe. Careful moderate eating and the use of bisurated magnesia should put your stomach in normal condition in a short time, if you have not allowed dyspepsia to advance to the extreme stage of developing stomach ulcers or cancer."—Adv

DEATHS.

Samuel McClelland.

Samuel McClelland, an employe of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for 40 years, and one of the best known residents of Connellsville, died this morning at 6 o'clock at the family residence in South Pittsburg street He had been in poor health for the last year or more, and although his condition had been serious for the past six weeks, he was able to be about the house up until a week ago. Complication of diseases was the cause of his death

Mr. McClelland was born in Pittsburg April 10, 1850, a son of William and Sarah McClelland He would have been 64 years old next Sunday When a young man he left Pittsburg and forty-two years ago he came to Connellsville Two years later he secured employment as foreman of the turning shops of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, holding the position for twenty years. At the expiration of that time he accepted the position of mechanical engineer for the company and followed that occupation until his health began to fail.

June 25, 1877, he was married in Connellsville to Miss Margery Cropp, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs Jacob Cropp, deceased. To the union three sons were born, all of whom survive as follows: Elmer C of Connellsville, Baltimore & Ohio assistant trainmaster at Smithfield; William Clyde, employed in the Baltimore & Ohio offices and Lloyd, employed in the offices of the Connellsville Water Company In addition to his widow and children he is survived by two sisters Mrs. Amzi Ryan and Mrs William Carson, both of McKeesport.

Mr. McClelland was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for many years He was a man of a retiring disposition and was held in high esteem by his wide circle of friends He was a stannch Republican but never took any active part in politics He was a member of the Knights of Pythias, the William McKinley Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Catawba Trail No. 20, Order of the Iroquois

WOMAN WOULD NOT GIVE UP

Though Sick and Suffering; At Last Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Pa. — "When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a dreadfully rundown state of health, had internal troubles, and was so extremely nervous and prostrated, that if I had given in to my feelings I would have been in bed. As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had a steady headache.

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad, I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. FRANK CLARK, 3146 N. Tulip St., Richmond, Pa.

CONGRESSMEN NOT SO CHEERFUL OVER U. S. ARMOR PLANT

Chairman Padgett Admits That It Would be Risky Experiment.

COSTS HIGHER THAN ESTIMATED

Loss From Improperly Made Material Would Also Run Up the Cost of Operation; Present Costs Declared to be Among Lowest of all Countries.

During discussion of the naval appropriation in the House last week, Chairman Padgett, of the naval affairs committee, made it plain that he is not ardently desirous of having the government build its own armor plate plant, says the Iron Trade Review. Threadbare statements, productive of much oratory for home consumption, had broken out when reference was made to the provision in the bill directing the secretary of the navy to investigate and report at the next regular session of Congress upon the selection of a suitable site for the erection of an armor plate plant.

It was stated by Chairman Padgett that it had been estimated that it would cost $15,237,000 to build a 20,000-ton plant and a gun-forging plant, while the estimate cost of the former would be $11,283,421. For a 10,000-ton plant, he said, it was estimated that the cost would be $8,466,000 and for a 5,000-ton plant, $6,309,000.

Then he turned to the point that the manufacture of armor plate was a hazardous undertaking.

"Like a plate that is 20 feet long and 10 feet wide, the size of one of the armor plates," said Mr. Padgett. "That represents an immense amount of money in the tonnage in the plate at any price. The spoiling of that plate represents a large loss. The government in experimenting with this thing in educating and training its men, might lose a very large sum of money that would add to the cost of the material that was manufactured in perfection."

Replying to Representative Buchanan of Illinois, Mr. Padgett said the government could employ experts, but that his information was that some of the experts in the manufacture of armor plate are paid at the rate of $10,000, $15,000 or $20,000 a year.

"The government does not pay salaries of that kind," Mr. Padgett said.

Disclaiming that he wanted to be put in the position of opposing a government-owned plant, he pointed out that the committee had instituted a proceeding to get the necessary information for intelligent action. He told Representative Levy that he understood that all foreign governments, except one, pay more than the United States does for armor plate. He conceded, too, in reply to a suggestion by Representative Browning, that armor plate companies had entered into the business at the request of the government.

Reading from testimony given before the committee recently by Admiral Strauss, he told Representative Williamson of Mississippi, that he was in error in his statement that Secretary Daniels had said armor could be made for $179 per ton. Admiral Strauss' testimony, he said, estimated that in a plant with a 20,000 ton capacity the cost would be $.79 a ton, manufacturing 100,000 tons a year, the estimated cost would be $142 per ton, and manufacturing 5,000 tons a year the cost would be $409 a ton. Figures were also submitted showing cost of manufacture for plants of smaller capacity would be relatively higher. Mr. Padgett said these estimates were largely made without "that acute investigation that should be made to authorize the government to go into an expenditure of a great many million dollars in a class of manufacture that is hazardous."

SMITHFIELD.

SMITHFIELD, May 7.—Council Tuesday night sustained the veto of the burgess of the special sidewalk paving ordinance on water. The burgess pointed out that a general ordinance fully covered this point. A motion was passed authorizing the laying of sidewalks on both sides of Water street under the provisions of the general ordinance. Wednesday, May 20, was designated by council as cleanup day.

SWIMMING.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

Swimming is the art of making a noise like a fish in the water. Man was not designed for swimming and is about the poorest living performer in the water. When the untaught man is dumped into a river he acts very much like a flatiron and usually does not survive more than a minute. However, a man can be taught to swim if he is persevering enough and does not mind getting water in his ears, nose and lungs during the process.

After a man has succeeded in keeping himself afloat for a few minutes he becomes very arrogant about it and goes through life telling non-swimmers that the art is as easy as breathing. He also exhorts all mankind to learn how to swim for self-protection and severely criticizes those parents who do not take their boys and girls to the nearest pond at an early age and dump them in.

"He also Feels Better During a Storm on the Deep Knowing That Land at the Most is only 5,000 Miles Away."

There is much to be said on the value of swimming. If a man knows how to swim he is much safer while on the water in steamers which are equipped with cast-iron life preservers. He also feels better during a storm on the deep, knowing that land at the worst is only 5,000 miles away. He is also so safe in a rowboat that he usually handicaps himself by putting on heavy hunting boots and going out in weather which causes the timid landlubber to sit on the shore and hold on to a tree for protection.

About this point the swimmer begins to become too blamed safe. Half the lives which are saved from the hungry deep are saved because of a knowledge of swimming, while half of the lives which are lost are lost because of that same knowledge. When a man has traveled a mile or more through cold water by kicking his legs like a frog he becomes over-confident, and some day when he is greatly in need of land he is unable to discover any except that directly beneath him.

Thousands of happy men and boys go swimming industriously every year and hundreds of them are fished out of the water later by their sorrowing relatives. They did not go swimming in order to save their lives, but because they knew how to swim. Swimming is just about as dangerous a form of safety as aviation is, because it is indulged in too extravagantly.

The man who goes straight down when dumped into the water may perish some day in the stormy ocean, but he has one great source of safety—he will never drown while in swimming.

STYLISH GIRDLE AND NECKWEAR.

On the upper left of the accompanying group is shown an elaborate piece of neckwear of satin and lace. The scalloped revers and collar are of white satin piped with wistaria satin and trimmed with buttons covered with the same. Around the outer edge of these revers cream lace is pleated and a frill of chiffon falls from the bottom. The little vest is made of shirred chiffon crossed by straps of the satin. Fine batiste was used for the little shirt front effect shown. The outer portion was of the plain batiste finished with a narrow ruffle of "Val" lace. The little chemisette is of the tucked batiste. Tiny pearl buttons trim the front. The girdle and peplum combined shown on the upper right was of Roman striped ribbon, buckle covered with the same.

THURSDAY EVE'G, MAY 7, 1914.

SENSATIONAL; NOT CONVINCING.

Colonel Bill Stone has cast his first stone.

The first installment of his serial story of the Workmen's Compensation bill appears in his personal organ, the Uniontown Record, this morning.

The Record in this connection says a great many flattering things about Bill Stone and a greater number of unflattering things about Bill Crow, but under the circumstances none of them will be considered seriously. Colonel Bill Stone is the reputed owner of $10,000 worth of the stock of The Record, and it has been aptly said that, "Money talks."

The Record assures us that Bill Stone's communication is "sensational." It is sensational. It is sensational in the fact that it would have the public believe that the Connellsville coke operators went to Harrisburg to protest against the Workmen's Compensation bill JUST TO OBLIGE SENATOR CROW AND NOT BECAUSE THEY HAD ANY PERSONAL INTEREST IN THE MEASURE.

Colonel Bill Stone is nothing if not sensational. He adds that while he went to Harrisburg with his fellow coke operators as he "agreed" to do, he did not go to oppose the Compensation bill, but to endeavor to have it amended, and in the same breath he tells us that HE DID NOT APPEAR BEFORE THE COMMITTEE. His endeavors to amend the bill do not appear to have taken concrete form.

Colonel Bill Stone is a coke operator and a large employer of labor. Senator Bill Crow is a lawyer and a farmer and employs no help to speak of. The former was interested in either amending the Workmen's Compensation bill into such shape as it would not be a constant menace of bankruptcy to him or in defeating all such legislation that might even be a tax upon his business. The proposed legislation would not have affected Senator Crow personally. He is not even interested in the brewery business as intimated by the Bull Moose organ. His interest in the Compensation law was only that of a legislator serving his constituents, and in this as in other cases he reckoned among his constituents the workmen as well as the employers.

Colonel Bill Stone is sensational, to be sure; but convincing, not at all.

PENNSYLVANIA NOT COLORADO.

It is reported that the striking miners at Herbert coke plant have served the superintendent with notice that "unless the boiler plant was closed down in 24 hours the place would be blown up."

The persons making this threat should be arrested, tried, convicted and punished in accordance with law. This is Pennsylvania, not Colorado.

It is the right of the workmen at this plant to refuse to work for the wages offered by the company, but they have no right to interfere with the operation of the plant, certainly none to destroy it.

In preserving our own rights we should always be careful not to invade the rights of others.

The News-not-Standard explains that County Superintendent Carroll was elected by the pernicious activity of Senator Crow and the perfidious action of no inconsiderable number of Democrats, but that the public school system of Fayette county is still safe. We are much relieved. Prior to the election we were led to think that possibly the schools and the country would go to rack and ruin if the convention did not choose a Democrat fill the job.

The reelection of a county superintendent who has served twelve years indicates that the Somerset county school directors value experience. A similar sentiment appears to prevail in this section.

It is reported that Coxey's Army has been reduced to seven on the march across the Alps. It is quite possible, however, that the General will be able to recruit his army to full strength when he gets closer to Washington, especially if Captain Robert Playford Kennedy with his persuasive tongue acts as recruiting officer.

Senator Penrose has spent $1,891 in the primary campaign, while Congressman Palmer confesses to $5,193. John William Dawson has not yet been heard from.

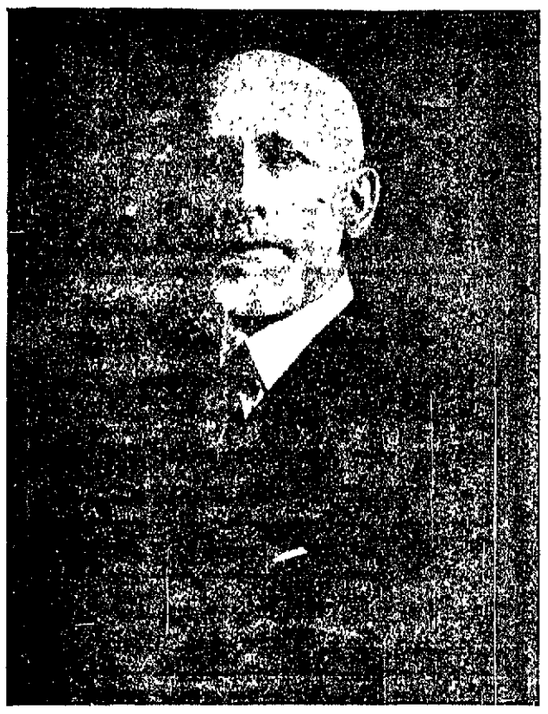

The Connellsville School Board reelected Stanley P. Ash city superintendent of schools for four years and raised his salary from $1,800 to $2,400. Appreciation is a gratifying thing, especially when it is expressed in a manner so substantial.

Uniontown has a reckless female auto driver, perhaps we should say at least one.

The South Connellsville woman who was burned at a brush bon-fire on clean-up day has finally given up her life. The fate of the good woman was sad. It is to be hoped there will be no more such sacrifices to a good cause.

American people who have been living in Mexico are visiting in Connellsville just now. They are here for their health. Connellsville always was a healthy place, but for Gringoes who have been living in Greaserdom it is just now particularly healthy.

Robert F. Hopwood of Fayette County Republican Candidate for Congress

Robert F. Hopwood of Uniontown, Fayette county, Pennsylvania, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the 23rd Congressional district. He has been an active and influential Republican for many years and his candidacy at this time appeals strongly to all those who believe in true Republican principles and leadership. He is so well and favorably known that it is almost unnecessary to make any extended comment upon his life or his candidacy. Mr. Hopwood was born in Uniontown, Pa., July 24, 1856. He is descended from one of the old and leading families of that community and has a large and respected family connection. After completing his early education he studied law under the preceptorship of the late Hon. Charles E. Boyle, was admitted to the bar July 29, 1879, and has always enjoyed a good law practice and ranks high in the profession. In 1894 he was elected solicitor for the county commissioners of Fayette county and continued to hold that position until 1912 when he declined re-election. During that period the county had much important and complicated legal business and Mr. Hopwood handled it with signal ability and success. He has ever been actively identified with all movements for the betterment and welfare of the community. When the Fayette County Agricultural Association was organized and active, Mr. Hopwood was closely associated with the late Jasper M. Thompson, Robert Hogsett and Dr. Smith Fuller in that work, being the secretary of the organization for about 10 years. He was attorney for the Borough of Uniontown for 10 years and largely instrumental in getting the borough to start on a system of street paving and sewering and other needful and progressive measures. Educational affairs have enlisted his hearty co-operation and support; and for ten years he was a member of the Uniontown school board. He has been a member of the board of trustees of the Uniontown Hospital Association for seven or eight years and is now president of the board.

Mr. Hopwood has been prominent in church work for many years; he has been superintendent of the Sunday school of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Uniontown for the past 27 years, is president of the board of trustees of that church and the chairman of the building committee that is in charge of the work of erecting the fine new church edifice.

For several years he was either secretary or chairman of the Republican County Committee of Fayette County, and during the Blaine campaign when he was chairman he caused to be organized the first Irish Republican club ever organized in Fayette county. It was largely due to his enthusiastic and energetic efforts that year that the large Democratic majority for which the county was noted, was reduced to a few hundred, and the Republican party so organized and encouraged that it soon became the majority party in the county.

In 1894 Mr. Hopwood was the unanimous choice of the Republicans of Fayette county for the nomination for Congress in the old 24th Congressional district composed of Fayette, Greene and Washington, and a part of Allegheny county. The conferee system was in force at that time and by a combination between Washington and Allegheny counties the district nomination went to Hon. E. F. Acheson, who was elected.

Robert F. Hopwood has always been at the call and service of his party at the polls and on the stump, but has never been mixed up in any of the party feuds or factional contests and had the good will and confidence of all those who desire to see the triumph of Republican principles. His nomination and election to Congress at this time will not only be a just recognition and reward for the services he has rendered the people and his party, but he will make a clean, able and faithful representative for this important district. He has no opposition for the nomination, but we present this sketch of him at this time in order to place him and his candidacy before the voters of the district. —Adv.

NEWS OF A DAY IN SCOTTDALE.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, May 7.—The committee appointed at the citizens' meeting to protest against the Central District Telephone Company raising the rates on residence phones from $1.00 and $1.25 to $1.50, as was stated at the meeting Tuesday evening by Chairman W. N Porter, got promptly to work. General Manager A. M. Crichton of the Tri-State Telephone Company came here yesterday from Uniontown and had a long conference with C. H. Eicher, J. S. Cook and J. T. Bradley, the committee, in which he laid before them the plans of the latter company if any interest is taken in them, and if the people want competition in telephone business. The conclusion of the committee is to call another meeting of the business men and telephone users at the Borough building on Tuesday evening at 7.30, when the proposition of the Tri-State Company will be compared with that of the Central District Company.

HEAVY STORM.

Another heavy thunder storm struck this locality last evening and lasted for quite a while. This spring has been one of many electric storms, and it appears as if it is going to be a thunderous summer, when summer finally arrives.

PHOTO MEETING.

PETTY THIEVES.

Petty thieves were active at Valley Monday evening when they entered the home of August Schwenke and took two bushels of potatoes, 10 quarts of jelly and about the same amount of chowchow. The house of Peter Ruse, which has been tenantless since the fire, was investigated by the thieves, who found a 10-gallon keg of wine turned to vinegar. They apparently took a few swigs out of the keg, but allowed it to remain.

BACK FROM HOSPITAL.

J. A. Brilhart is reported to be building three houses on George street as a speculation, intending to rent or sell the houses.

FROM UNIONTOWN.

Mrs Charles Stoner of Uniontown spent Friday here as the guest of Mrs Harry B. Lynn

RECEPTION GIVEN.

A reception was given in honor of Rev. and Mrs. H. D. Allen, who came here recently from Erie, by the congregation and friends of the Baptist Church last evening. Among those who spoke were Dr. D. A Solly of Greensburg, Rev. L. E. Yahn of Mount Pleasant, Rev Wilbur Nelson of Connellsville and Rev H W. Millen, Rev L. W. Keister and Rev. H S. Piper of the local ministers. H A. Bricker gave the welcome in behalf of the congregation. There was a musical program and refreshments were served.

MURDER TRIAL.

In the week of the present court at Greensburg opening on May 11 the first case listed is that of Sebastian Danes charged with murder. Danes is the Ridge street merchant into whose store on the afternoon of February 19 John Riggio, a barber from across the street, is said to have come demanding $500 or Danes's life, at which the latter promptly shot him. The Danes had been living for several weeks in fear of the Black Hand as they received letters which they threw over to the police. Danes has been out on bail since the shooting, and it is expected that he will be freed

CAUSE AND EFFECT

Indigestion and the attendant discomforts of mind and body are certain to follow continued use of improper food.

Those who are still young and robust are likely to overlook the fact that as dropping water will wear a stone away at last, so will the use of heavy, greasy rich food, finally cause loss of appetite and indigestion.

Fortunately many are thoughtful enough to study themselves and note the principle of cause and effect in their daily food. A. N. Y young woman writes her experience thus:

"Some time ago I had a lot of trouble from indigestion, caused by too rich food. I got so I was unable to digest scarcely anything, and medicines seemed useless.

"A friend advised me to try Grape-Nuts food, praising it highly and as a last resort, I tried it. I am thankful to say that Grape-Nuts not only relieved me of my trouble, but built me up and strengthened my digestive organs so that I can now eat anything I desire. But I stick to Grape-Nuts."

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Use It Like a Cold Cream and Dry Eczema Eruptions Right Up.

The moment you apply bold-sulphur to an itching or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a renowned dermatologist.

This remarkable sulphur made into a thick cream effects such prompt relief, even in aggravated Eczema, that it is a never-ending source of amazement to physicians.

For many years bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous eruptions by reason of its cooling, parasite-destroying properties and nothing has ever been found to take its place in relieving irritable and inflammatory affections of the skin. While not always establishing a permanent cure, yet, in every instance, it immediately subdues the itching irritation and heals the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again manifests itself.

Any good pharmacist will supply an ounce of bold-sulphur cream, which should be applied to the affected parts like the ordinary cold creams. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded is very welcome, particularly when the Eczema is accompanied with torturous itching.—Adv.

ITCHING IRRITATION

Worst Form of Skin Trouble Quickly Relieved by Inexpensive Treatment.

When you suffer with any skin trouble even though the itching seems unbearable, do not think that it is necessary to use some disgusting, greasy ointment. Try Hokara, a pure and simple cream, that is guaranteed to contain no grease or acids and which is so clearly that it does not soil the linen

Its power to instantly relieve any irritation of the skin and make it soft, white and beautiful is almost miraculous

Not only do minor skin troubles like pimples blackheads, acne, barber's itch, etc., quickly disappear, but the worst cases of salt rheum or eczema are cleansed and healed by this wonderful skin food

In order that any one may try Hokara at small expense, A. A. Clarke's drug store is selling a liberal-sized jar at 25c, and in addition guarantee to refund the money if the treatment does not do all that is claimed for it. —Adv.

BLACK AND WHITE CHIFFON WITH BLACK TAFFETA.

The perennially popular black and white combination is again to the fore this season. It is charmingly exploited here in this gown of taffeta. The over-blouse of this is of the taffeta with deep "V" front and wide elbow-holes. In striking contrast to this is the flaring collar and neck ruffling of pure white mulline. The sleeves are of black and white figured chiffon and are finished with broad bands of the taffeta. The girdle also is of the taffeta, while the triple tunic of graduated depths was of chiffon, the lower one bordered with the taffeta. Taffeta was used for the underskirt.

COKING INDUSTRY MAY BE HARD HIT BY SPOTTING TAX

Question Raised as to How Often It Will be Charged.

MAY BE FOUR CHARGES A CAR

Coke Men Have Assumed that Only One Rate Would be Imposed, but Railroads May Get It Going and Coming, at Works and Furnace.

The railroads have filed their proposed tariffs for spotting charges. They name a rate of 5½ cents per ton with a minimum of $2 per car. "Spotting" service is thus defined in the railroad tariffs filed:

"Spotting service is the service beyond a reasonable convenient point of interchange between road haul or connecting carrier and industrial plant tracks and includes

"(a) One placement of a loaded car which the road haul or connecting carrier has transported; or

"(b) The tilting out of a loaded car from a particular location in the plant for transportation by road-haul or connecting carrier.

"(c) The handling of the empty car in the reverse direction."

The modern steel coke cars of this Connellsville region have a capacity of upwards of 40 tons. The average of the Lower Connellsville or Klondyke district is 38 tons and of the Connellsville region or old basin district 35 tons. The spotting charge on the former cars would be $2.00 and on the latter $2.00. The American Metal Market raises the interesting question whether this charge will be imposed both going and coming. It says:

"Instead of the charge being simply one imposed at the end of a haul, it is one imposed at the beginning and end of the haul of a loaded car, and likewise at the beginning and end of an empty movement. Roughly, therefore, there will be cases of four spotting charges when many men have apparently expected but one. As we read the definition it means that in certain cases a railroad will charge for spotting the empty car for loading; then it will charge for taking the loaded car to the regular point of interchange; next it will charge the recipient for spotting the loaded car and finally it will charge the consignee for removing the empty car."

If this view prevails, the extra charges on coke from the Connellsville region would be $4 per car instead of $2, and this will in some cases be doubled at the point of delivery. Counting this cost at the ovens, however, it will be a tax of 11 cents per ton.

In this connection one of the strongest arguments made against the 5% raise was by Wade H. Ellis in behalf generally of the iron and steel interests. Attorney Ellis pointed out that the railroads have reversed themselves with respect to the position they took in the 1910 case when low grade commodities were not included in the list of articles on which rates were to be increased, it having been said at that time these commodities were already bearing their share of the cost of transportation.

Mr. Ellis further pointed out that about 70% of the total tonnage hauled by the eastern railroads comes under the class of low-grade freight. He rapped the railroads for seeking to increase the freight rate on low-grade freight, such as coke, coal and ore, when two years ago they maintained that a 5% increase on the higher class commodities would yield sufficient revenue. Mr. Ellis particularly criticised the 88 cent rate on ore from the Lakes to Wheeling and Pittsburg.

THE ARCADE.

ARCADE'S NEW BILL.

The Arcade presents a change in program for the last half of this week that ought to please. The engagement is Scotty and Murray's Minstrel Fiends, composed of five girls with two men who are good dancers and comedians. The wardrobe is elaborate and the clever little company claims to offer a show that will please all. To follow this attractive bill Manager Pat Hall has booked one of the best musical comedy skits shown of the season for next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, entitled "A Lark in the Park" company, composed of 10 clever people.

CHAPTER X.

Katherine was just as much amazed at meeting Hayes as he was at finding her at the door.

"I didn't know you would be here," Katherine apologized, "otherwise I—"

Bob's expression silenced her. She had never seen such an expression in his eyes before. Katherine was radiantly beautiful today. She knew it. More than that, she had taken particular care to gown herself in an exquisite afternoon dress of dull blue, a gown that had been draped according to her own fastidious design. But in Bob's eyes there was no response to her beauty or her clothes or her poise. He didn't even attempt to disguise his disgust at her effrontery in invading Mrs. Slade's retreat.

"I went to see Mrs. Slade," Katherine finally announced.

"Upon my word!" his voice was low, but hoarse. "I never heard of such a thing as your coming to this house. What do you want here? Want to tell that little woman you're after her? What do you want here?"

"Will you kindly tell Mrs. Slade that I am here?" Katherine's eyes were hard and her mouth a thin strip of determination.

"First, I want to know what you're going to say to her," Hayes demanded.

"Whether I say it today or tomorrow doesn't matter," Katherine answered, quietly. "I'll say it. So you might as well let her know I'm here—and go."

"All right, but do you think you had better risk it? You look out! When she discovers—" Mary's entrance at this moment checked Hayes' warning.

She Had Not Expected to Find Such a Sweet Little Woman.

She looked questioningly, first at Katherine, then at Hayes.

"I'll be back, auntie, in a very few minutes," Hayes remarked. "I've got to work on my car. This is Miss Strickland," and he shut the door.

"Oh—Miss Strickland," repeated Mary, very much pleased, but very much in awe of the senator's daughter. "You called on me once before, but I had a headache. I've often wished since I hadn't had it. Won't you take off your things and sit down. It's very kind of you to call."

Katherine thanked her and sat down. She had not expected to find such a sweet little woman in Mrs. Slade. The woman was so little, so fragile, so harmless and helpless in appearance. Even the old-fashioned cottage made its appeal to the girl's sensitive spirit, the shabby furniture gave her a vision of what Slade's earlier life with this woman must have been. Instead of her usual poise, she found herself quite a little at a loss to know what to do or say before the frank, sincere gaze of Slade's wife. The questions she had meant to blurt out soon after her arrival remained mutely on her lips. Instead she found herself answering the questions that Mary Slade was asking.

She found herself telling the woman of her own struggles against increasing poverty, talking of her own hopes and ambitions.

"Mrs. Slade, I don't say this is a social call," Katherine found herself as frank as the woman at the other side of the table.

"You—you know all about my trouble, Miss Strickland?"

"Yes, that's what I'd like to talk to you about, without offending you, if I might. You see, this trouble comes very near to us—"

"How does it come near to you, my dear?" Mary interrupted.

"Mrs. Slade," Katherine set herself bravely to what she knew would be a bitter task. "My father is virtually a beggar. You know how we live. People think we're rich. Well—we're poor! We're getting poorer every day. Every penny is tied up in—politics. My father was the first to see Mr. Slade's strength. He is now living on Mr. Slade's future."

Mary nodded.

"Mr. Slade is a very important man," Katherine went on, "but no matter how much people admire him he can easily be ruined by a scandal."

"I haven't any desire to ruin my husband," Mary protested, quickly.

"No, I'm sure you haven't," Katherine was more at ease as the conversation progressed. "But you being here and he being a few miles away, of course, there's no excuse to be offered, is there? It is a scandal. Politically and socially he's ruined unless he comes back here, or you—" Katherine paused, for the simple reason that she didn't have the heart to finish.

"Or I go away," Mary completed the sentence. "Yes, and if I go away—I know what that means. No. I'm not going away. Miss Strickland, you tell your father and his friends, from me—"

"Oh, no—please," Katherine objected. "I came quite alone, unknown to him."

"Well, you might as well tell him or anyone else that wants to know—"

"Oh, no, I couldn't, Mrs. Slade. I couldn't carry any messages. I came here to find out—" Katherine checked herself. The situation was suddenly becoming embarrassing.

"Well, now, you know," Mary answered, "there won't be any divorce."

"I see—yes—" and she took up her gloves, preparatory to going.

"I'm very sorry," Mary explained, "that others should suffer through this, but that's how it stands. For once in his life Dan Slade is not going to have his own way." She smiled. "Now, let's talk of something else. I hear you draw pictures of your dresses—designs. Is that one of your own gowns?"

"Oh, yes," Katherine replied, amiably, "I often do little sketches for the fashion magazines, and I do busts. My friends think it's a fad, when as a matter of fact, it's for money, for clothes and things."

"I had no idea." Mary was all sympathy and understanding. "You're so young and need pretty things. That's one of the joys I've missed—dressing a daughter! You know," she began, suddenly, "I've heard a great deal of you, and you're not at all the young lady I supposed you were. You're just as simple and sweet and natural as you can be. And your affection for your father!"

Mary got up and, selecting the loveliest rose from the cluster in the vase, carefully wiped the stem and handed it to Katherine.

"Won't you stay for a bit of dinner? Better have just a bite."

"I must go," returned Katherine absently. Somehow or other she hadn't quite expected this sort of a visit.

"I hope I haven't said anything to trouble you," she hastened to add. "What I said about this running Mr. Slade is just an echo of what his friends say."

"My dear child, you haven't hurt my feelings. Perhaps you know something I don't know?" she asked, suddenly. "Do sit down again. Stay just a minute. I'd like to talk some more. You're out in the world and I'm quite alone. People aren't as frank with me as they might be. Suppose I'm your mother—just let me say it—and my husband wanted a divorce—he's old enough to be your father—we'd all get together to find out why, wouldn't we?"

"I suppose we would," and Katherine took the chair Mrs. Slade had indicated.

"What I want to know is why people think Mr. Slade wants a divorce? Why, isn't a separation bad enough?"

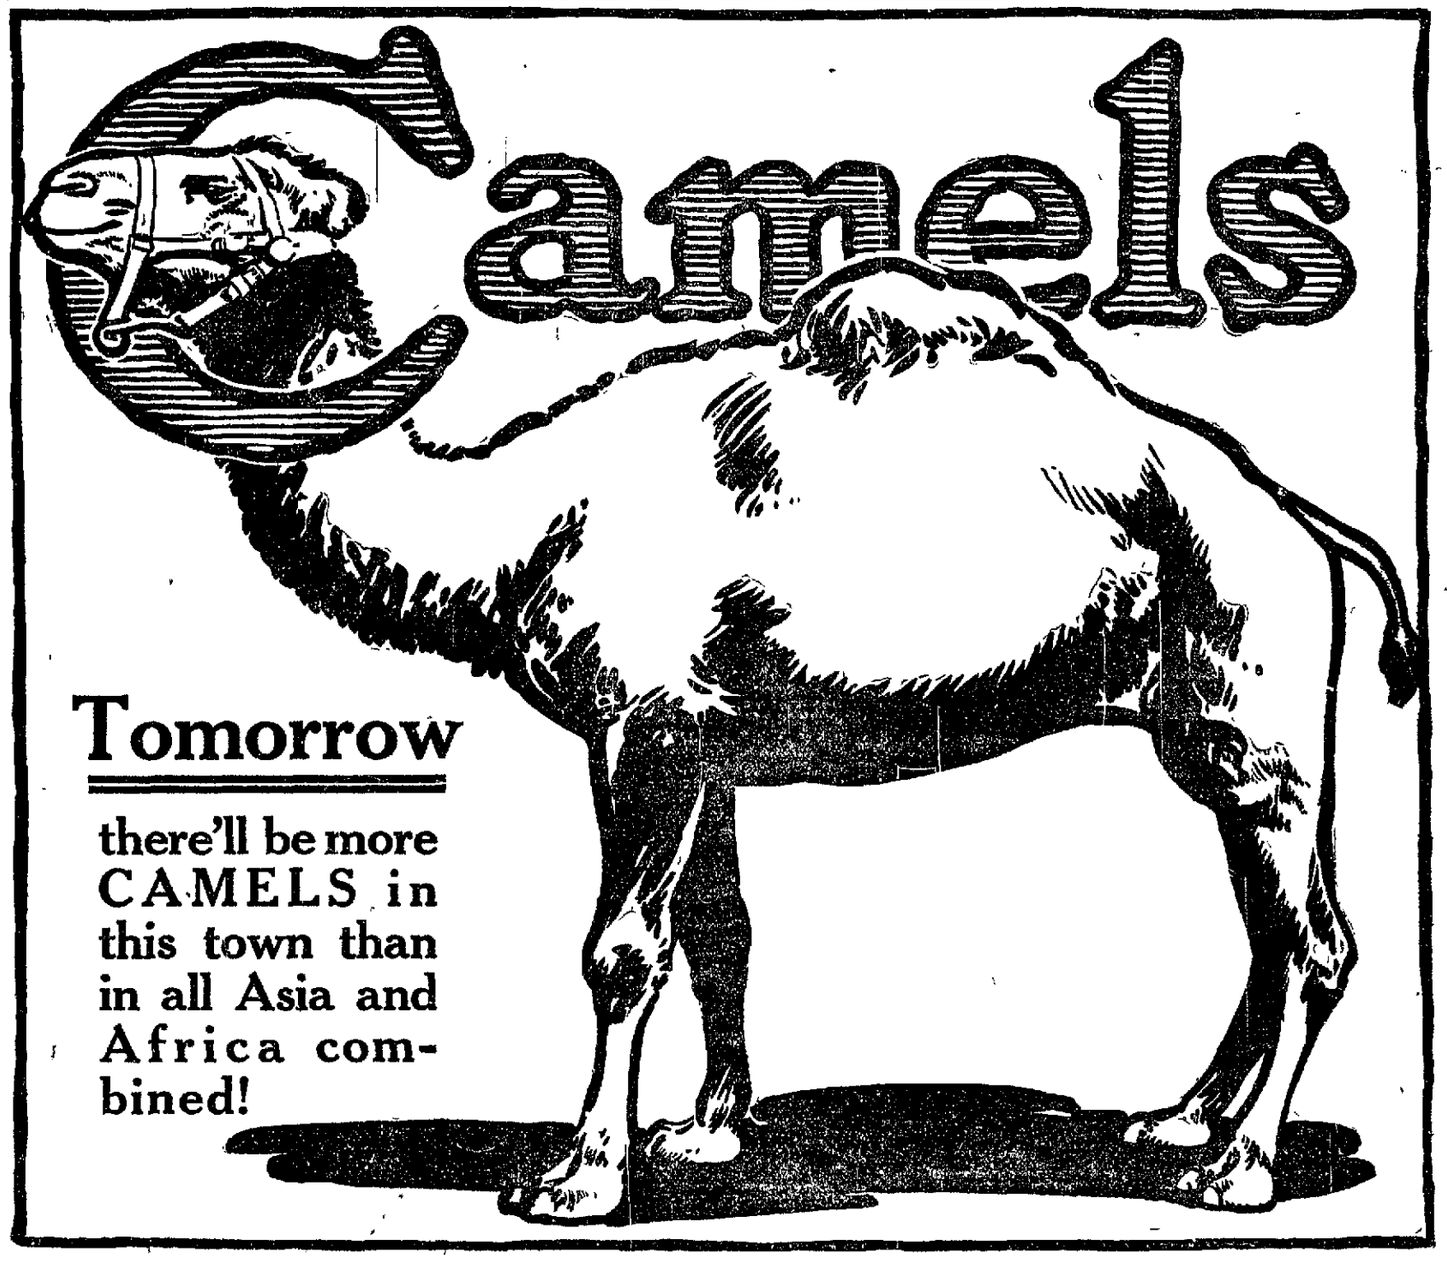

"I don't know that I—" For the life of her she could think of no answer to this directly simple line of questioning.

"Well, there's only one reason I ever knew of," Mary continued, "when a man's so insistent. I guess you know the kind of reason I mean—a—well—a younger reason."

"You mean—a woman?" Katherine's voice was cold and firm.

"Yes, I do. It doesn't seem to surprise you," Mary declared suddenly noticing that Katherine had known at once just what she had in mind. "Miss Strickland, I think you know something more than you're telling me and you hate to say it. What would you do in my place?" she asked as Katherine's silence gave virtual assent.

"I?" Katherine asked vacantly. She thought a moment. Then quickly, earnestly: "I'll tell you what I'd do. I'd do what they all do. I'd save what's left of the affection I once had. It's no use standing over a man with the end of a chain in your hand, that doesn't get him back. I'd take his money, the luxury—I'd simply—well, I'd dissolve partnership and I'd go. I'd go to some place where life interested me and get what I could out of it. I'd live as I never had lived, and

"There, There, Don't You Cry for Me."

I'd make him pay."

"That's a new idea to me." Mary was listening intently. "I never thought of such a thing."

"And supposing, Mrs. Slade, that another woman did appear. I don't say there is one, but—"

"But is there?" Mary persisted.

"I didn't say so. But I do know this. If we do love anyone, and they really love us, they never get over it and we never get over it, either, for there's always something in our hearts that we can't—we can't forget. And take a man who's not young, like Mr. Slade, why, no other woman could be anything at all to him—I mean anything more than something to keep up his position."

"I see," replied Mary, thoughtfully. "Someone to sit in his box at the opera—someone to go about and do him credit. Miss Strickland," she paused a moment and looked at Katherine earnestly, "there is such a woman, and you know it. I believe, Miss Strickland, I believe the Lord sent you straight here to me."

"I only came to find out what you intend doing," Katherine answered, alarmed and not knowing exactly what Mrs. Slade meant. "I mustn't trouble you any longer."

"You're no trouble at all," said Mary, detaining her. "It's the doubt that troubles me. Miss Strickland, I know perfectly well you must have heard people talking. The words I want are in your mouth. Come, now, honestly tell me," she coaxed, "who is the hussy?"

"Mrs. Slade," exclaimed Katherine, haughtily, unconsciously drawing herself up.

"I ought not to have used that word, I know," Mary drew a long breath, "but I—you can't blame me. Why, do you know what it would mean? It would mean two Mrs. Slades here in this town or — or — anywhere he's known. Two Mrs. Slades after all these long, respectable years! Why, it isn't human!" and she held up two accusing fingers. "Oh, no! Every one would be askin' 'Which Mrs. Slade is that—the old one or the new one he got?' He'd be out with Mrs. Slade No. 2, while Mrs. Slade No. 1 was home breaking her heart. Well, they don't catch me like that! Not much! If that's what it means, there's only going to be one Mrs. Slade, and I wouldn't stoop to be that one. I fought for his name when he was free, but if he isn't now, I wouldn't haggle over a man who didn't respect me enough to—No! She could take him and his name and his money and—I'd go to where people didn't know the sight of my face. Miss Strickland, there is another woman, and you know it. Out with it, like a good girl. Just say it—and I'll take your advice. I'll make the best of life and go. Just say it!"

Katherine quailed before this sudden outburst. Then the hope of influencing the woman to divorce her husband spurred her on and she replied:

"Yes, there is."

"Is she—" Mary was unprepared for the admission in spite of all she had said. Her voice broke— "Is she young?"

"Yes," came from Katherine. Even at that moment it occurred to her that the situation was unparalleled—this wife asking her—"the other woman"—about herself.

"Many years' difference in our ages?"

"I think so."

"Is she pretty?"

"People say she is."

Mary experienced a sudden revulsion of feeling.

"I don't believe it," she cried, refusing to believe what was not pleasant to believe. "Dan Slade wouldn't. You're mistaken."

As Katherine made no reply, she went on. "But you seem to be sure?"

"I'm certain," answered Katherine, evenly and without emotion.

"Do you know her?"

The lace at Katherine's throat fluttered with her rapid breathing.

"I—yes, slightly."

"Why, Dan Slade have another woman in my old place! So that's it?" as Katherine remained silent. "I'm much obliged. I'll keep my word. He can have his divorce any way he wants it. She can have him and his name and his money," her voice became shrill. "Here, I'll give you something to give him," and she darted into the adjoining bedroom. "It will remind her of something she hasn't got—his youth! His youth! His youth! See?" and she thrust before Katherine's eyes the picture of Dan Slade when they were first married, the picture she had always worn. That's the way he looked when he was young. Tell her she can keep it." And she forced the brooch into Katherine's reluctant fingers. "She can see what she's missed! Well, I'm done with it—and with both of them. There!" and weak from her frenzied outburst she sank into a chair. There was intense silence for a moment. Katherine stood as if petrified. Mary sat with brooding eyes, thinking. She was the first to speak, trying hard to be brave.

"Well, there's one comfort. It ain't as though I had any children. Who'd ever have thought we would have come to this—here in this house. If I had had a baby, here's where it would have been born—and that's the real reason I stuck to this house—it ain't spunk.

"We were both very young," she talked meditatively, more to herself than to Katherine. "I was awfully happy. I couldn't wish you any better, dear," and she turned impulsively to the girl, who sat amazed, breathlessly watching her, than hoping to have a child by some young man you cared for. There's no happiness like it. But one day there was an accident in the mine and they came and told me he was hurt—and I thought, p'raps, he was dead—and—my sudden fear for him robbed us of our little child and me of all the hope of ever—" Her voice broke with the agony of all childless good women since the beginning of time.

"See—in there," she pointed through the open door into the next room, "in the bureau drawer—the one by the window—there's all the little things I got ready years and years ago," her voice quivered piteously. "And now I'm old and there's another woman—a younger," the tears were streaming down her cheeks now and Katherine's heart ached in sympathy with her. The girl's throat was dry and her eyes blinded by tears as she repeated over and over again to her accusing conscience. 'I didn't know. I didn't know."

"If we'd only had children," Mary sobbed, losing herself in complete collapse. "Nothing counts but children. They're all we get out of marriage when we're old. If we'd only had children, he couldn't have left me like this," her shoulders shook.

Katherine started to her feet, unable longer to bear the sight of the woman's suffering.

"Don't cry, Mrs. Slade, don't cry," she pleaded.

'My God!" Mary exclaimed. "How am I a-goin' to live out my life! I can't. I can't. I'm used to him, and now he's going to have another woman near him." There was renunciation and anguish and anger in her outburst. "And I've lived with him all these years. I can't help lovin' him," she sobbed.

Katherine watched her, aghast at the vision of a love such as she had never before realized. The hot tears filled her eyes and her lips trembled. Unable to fight any longer, she stretched out her hand and touched the older woman gently, almost reverently.

"Oh, please—please don't cry like that," she begged. "I can't stand it. Oh, please don't," and suddenly her emotions swept away her control—her remembrance of why she had come—of everything but this slender, sobbing little woman. She flung her arms around Mary, burying her face on her shoulder. The woman in her rose up and rebelled at what she had been about to do. Love, not of the world, mastered the worldly in her, as the tears overflowed.

"Mrs. Slade, you fight," she sobbed, breathlessly. "Never mind what! You fight! He loves you best after all. I've seen that. Don't you give in! You'll get him back. She's an out-and-out bad, heartless, selfish creature. She's bad—bad, stifling every good, honest impulse for money—money! You're right to hate it. It is a dirty thing. If he were poor she wouldn't look at him. Don't you mind and don't you cry, Mrs. Slade. You fight—fight them—all," and she loosened her arms and sank sobbing and heartbroken, into a chair, throwing her head on her outstretched arms in a perfect abandon of repentance and grief.

For a few moments the two women sobbed brokenly. Mary was the first to recover.

'There, there," she cried, patting Katherine tenderly on the shoulder, "don't you cry for me."

Suddenly Hayes appeared in the doorway. He looked first at Mary, then at Katherine. Katherine, her face still buried, her sobs still uncontrolled, had not heard him open the door. One sight of the two women was enough to convince him that in the encounter the stronger had been defeated and that the gentle little woman whom he loved had come off the victor.

Mary stood looking from Hayes to Katherine in bewildered perplexity. Suddenly her eyes lighted with a thought. She began to read her answer in Bob's eyes, but he turned to avoid her glance. She looked again at the sobbing girl and as she did so the conviction came to her that Katherine was the woman her husband was planning to marry. She opened her mouth as if to speak, and turned questioningly again to Bob. But Hayes could not meet her eyes. Suddenly Mary pointed an accusing finger at Katherine's bowed head. "She! Oh-h!" she gasped.

Katherine, unconscious of the revelation that had just taken place, was still sobbing bitterly, but with sweeter tears than she had shed for many, many years. The sight of the girl's misery called for all the treasures of love and sympathy in Mary's nature, sweetened by long years of forgiving and self-sacrifice.

'There, there there," she crooned, as she patted Katherine's head. Overcome with an emotion she could not control, Katherine clasped her arms about her comforter and wept softly and quietly on her breast.

Bob, too surprised to believe his own eyes, came up to her.

"Katherine!" he exclaimed.

"Oh, Bob, I'm so ashamed," Katherine confessed as she got to her feet and stumbled into his arms, crying out for forgiveness and the love she had so cruelly and so thoughtlessly flung aside.

"I understand, I understand." Bob was very gentle and forgiving as he took her in his arms.

"I love you, Bob," she sobbed. "I don't care who hears me say it. I don't care. I love you."

"Come," he said, leading her tenderly toward the door. "We'll talk it over on the way home."

COKE MARKET DULL BUT $2.00 FURNACE PRICE HOLDS FAST

Second Half Foundry Coke Contracts Slow in Signing Up.

SPOT COKE DOWN TO $1.85

This, However, is the Minimum Price. Hand-to-Mouth Buying Continues. Pig Iron Market Stays Stagnant. Lake Ore Prices 1914 Announced.

From The Weekly Courier.

PITTSBURG, May 6.—There is a total lack of interest in future coke deliveries on the part of the consumers, but the market has held up to former quotations nevertheless.

There has been no inquiry for contract furnace coke for the month of May. In the case of some 20,000 tons a month which was under contract at $2.00 for the month of April, arrangements have been made whereby shipments are to be continued at the $2.00 price, but not necessarily for the full month as it is not certain that the furnaces involved will continue in blast through the month. In the case of other furnaces, involving perhaps a much larger monthly tonnage, nothing at all has been done except by way of picking up odd lots of prompt coke and the consumers apparently expect to supply their needs indefinitely in this way.

Prompt furnace coke is available down to $1.85 though it is possible no very large tonnage could be secured at this price. It would appear, however, that more prompt coke than the market could require can be secured at less than the $2.00 price which leading operators have been quoting as their minimum. The prompt market therefore appears to be quotable at $1.85 to $1.95, or unchanged from a week ago. As to the $2.00 price on contract, there are no open quotations at less, and the operators seem still to be firm at the figure, though since consumers manifest no interest the figure is more or less nominal.

The majority of foundry coke contracts expire June 30, and usually by this time considerable interest is manifested in their renewal. This time, however, consumers evince little inclination to take hold, and it may be several weeks before there are many important negotiations for foundry coke contracts. Many if not most of the existing contracts are at $2.00 or even a shade higher, and the consumers naturally expect to do much better on their new contracts. It is only a guess what prices will eventually be done on these contracts. The leading foundry coke producers, inasmuch as they hold so many contracts at about $3.00, on which they are making regular shipments, have been indisposed to name much lower prices, and their quotations are usually $2.75 to $3.00. They do not, of course, expect to close fresh contracts at these figures but could not well quote much less without inviting consumers to ask for readjustments. There is prompt foundry coke to be had at $2.50, of good grade, and on down to $2.35 in some cases, while contracts make the quoted nominal at $2.50. The general market stands as follows:

Prompt furnace	$1.85@$1.95
Contract furnace	$2.00
Prompt foundry	$2.35@$2.50
Contract foundry (nominal)	$2.50

The pig iron market continues stagnant. Lake Superior ore prices have been announced for the 1914 season at 85 cents reduction from 1913 on Bessemer and 55 cents reduction on non-Bessemer putting prices back to the 1912 basis. It is generally held that the pig iron and steel markets long ago discounted this ore reduction, so that it should not have any damaging effect upon iron and steel prices now. It has been claimed that merchant furnaces are losing about a dollar a ton on pig iron prices now quoted, and this may be assumed to represent an anticipation of the ore reduction which is now formally announced. Quotations are: Bessemer, $14.00, basic, $13.00; malleable, $13.25; foundry, $13.25; gray forge, $12.75, at Valley furnaces, 90 cents higher delivered Pittsburg.

The W. P. Snyder & Co. pig iron averages, compiled by averaging actual sales prices, are announced for April at $14.00, Valley, for Bessemer, a decline of 17 cents from March, and at $13.00, Valley, for basic, a decline of four cents.

TO TALK ACCIDENTS

Commissioner Jackson to Consult Men in Pittsburg This Month.

Preparations are being made by Commissioner John Price Jackson of the State Department of Labor & Industry for a conference to be held in Pittsburg early this month. Conferences have been held in Philadelphia, Scranton and other cities for the purpose of getting people interested in various lines of industrial activity together on politics in regard to safety so that rules applicable to the whole state may be framed and accidents reduced.

The Pittsburg conference will be held at the University of Pittsburg, and people prominent in industries, in collegiate work, casualty insurance affairs and commercial organizations will meet with state officials to discuss ways and means of reaching standards in operation which will work for greater safety and precaution, especially of such accidents as are due to wastes.

March Report of the B. & O.

The March report of the Baltimore & Ohio, just issued, shows the gross operating revenue was $191,523 larger than it was in the corresponding month a year ago and that net operating income increased $861,636. Operating expenses were $667,113 less than they were in March, 1913. Transportation expenses were $3,120 less than in March, 1913.

Chi-Namel Demonstration

Basement Store

ON

Friday: Saturday: Monday.

We carry and recommend Chi-Namel Products because we believe them to be the most economical for our patrons, for the finishing of wood work and floors of new buildings, or refinishing old.

Also for brightening and toning up old furniture, walls, etc., and making them look just as if they were fresh from the factory.

There is hardly a need in the line of finishing that Chi-Namel does not supply—for instance:

For floors, furniture, etc., you will find dull or glos finishes and stains. Finishes that will stand weather exposure as well as for interiors.

Finishes for automobiles.
Finishes for cement floors.
Stains for shingles and wood work.

Graining materials which make it possible for the blemishes in the poorest old floor imaginable to look and wear like new hard wood at a cost of only 2 cents per square foot

The Demonstrators will show and explain to you anything you may be interested in, in the entire line. A visit with her is worth the time of any housewife. And it is for your benefit this demonstration is given.

NO CONCRETE SIGNS OF STEEL IMPROVEMENT

But an Early Though Moderate Increase Is Thought to be Imperative: Ore and Steel Prices.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron trade situation tomorrow as follows:

By quiet announcement of some of the Lake Superior ore producers, 1914 season prices seem to be established on the basis of the 1912 schedule, involving reductions of 55 to 65 cents from the 1913 schedule, as the 1912 prices involved reductions of 65 to 75 cents from 1911 prices. Were precedent a guide, iron and steel prices should now advance, for in the great majority of instances advances in ore prices have chanced to be followed by declines in iron and steel prices, and vice versa. This peculiar course is due to the fact that ore prices are made once a year while iron and steel prices more often than not make the round trip up and down in a period of about two years. Ore prices are advanced when iron and steel prices have already advanced, and they are reduced when iron and steel prices have already declined. The reduced prices of 1912 were announced on March 20th of that year, at a time when pig iron and steel prices had just begun to advance. They continued to advance for seven months in steel and nine months in pig iron.

The pig iron market continues stagnant but the attitude of furnaces is that the already small production will be curtailed further rather than that prices will be reduced further.

Orders for finished steel products are not heavier than a fortnight ago and may possibly average somewhat lighter. Production, which has been in excess of bookings since about March 1st, has continued to decline, and current estimates place it variously at from 50% to 80% of capacity. Steel prices are practically stationary.

The opinion is being more and more commonly expressed that an early, though perhaps very moderate, improvement in steel demand is imperative on account of depleted stocks, with actual consumption presumably running beyond the rate of buying of the past few weeks, but it is freely admitted that no concrete signs of any improvement have thus far appeared.

WHAT THIN FOLKS SHOULD DO TO GAIN WEIGHT

Physician's Advice For Thin, Undeveloped Men and Women.

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs who, having tried advertised flesh-makers, food-fads, physical culture stunts and rub-on creams, resign themselves to life-long skinniness and thing nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently discovered regenerative force makes fat grow after years of thinness, and is also unequalled for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable discovery is called Sargol. Six strengthbuilding, fat-producing elements of acknowledged merit have been combined in this peerless preparation, which is endorsed by eminent physicians and used by prominent people everywhere. It is absolutely harmless, inexpensive and efficient.

A month's systematic use of Sargol should produce flesh and strength by correcting faults of digestion and by supplying highly concentrated fats to the blood. Increased nourishment is obtained from the food eaten, and the additional fats that thin people need are provided. Leading druggists supply Sargol and say there is a great demand for it.

While this new preparation has given splendid results as a nerve-tonic and vitalizer, it should not be used by nervous people unless they wish to gain at least ten pounds of flesh.—Ad.

NEW COKE LISTS

Revised Compilation of Connellsville Region Plants Being Issued.

The latest compilation of the coke plants of the Connellsville region is being prepared by The Courier and will soon be ready for distribution. For the past 20 years The Courier has each year issued this list, which is important to coke men, manufacturing interests, railroad men and others connected with this industry.

Originally the list included only the Connellsville region proper. As the new fields were developed, it grew until now it takes in all plants of the Connellsville, Lower Connellsville, Greensburg-Connellsville and Upper Connellsville regions.

The list gives the name of each plant, number of ovens, postoffice address of both; the general and local offices, and the railroad connections.

This is the official directory of the Connellsville coke region and is the only one of its kind published.

June Patterns Fashionsheets PICTORIAL REVIEW New style book for summer

It's very important that you see the summer styles as shown in the Style Book, the most widely read publication of authoritative fashions. It is just as important that you use Pictorial Patterns; they are true guides to perfection in dressmaking—simple, easy to follow, resultful and economical. The well-informed "Pattern Girl" will give you valuable assistance.

Strikingly Beautiful Silks

No one can doubt that it is a season of wonderful silks, when they look at the novel colors and quaint designs that mark the largest-ever variety this good silk store is showing. There's no end to the clever effects that can be produced with a combination of plain colors and the new stripe, plaid, check and floral designs. We have collected a magnificent stock of absolutely correct silks to be used for the fashionable two-piece costumes; the gowns and the frocks for day and evening wear; the suit blouses, negligees and other apparel of summer—underwear included. Also, there's special silks for trimmings and linings; sashes and girdles. Here they are:

TAFFETAS—Plain, black and colors. A yard $1.50.
MOIRES—Lovely water effects; sound grades, $1.25 to $4.50.
CREPES—Meteor, Canton, plain Crepe de Chine, $1.75 and $2.00.
PRINTS—Crepe, Taffeta and Bengaline, $1.50 to $5.
POPLIN—A mixture of silk and wool. A yard $1.35.
MESSALINE—Twenty-some shades and black and white, $1.00.
WASH SILK—Delicate and deep colors on white $1.00.
BERBER—A "crepe-y" weave, rich and long wearing, $1.25.

Bridal Silks The fashionable weaves in pure white. In preparation for late spring weddings, the silk store has assembled the various good weaves that are being used this season. They are chosen with great care and marked at moderate prices. Among them:—Crepe de chine, crepe meteor, charmeuse, crinkled crepes, broche crepe, moire and Bengaline. Prices are $1.50 to $2.50 a yard. These same weaves can be had in evening shades for bridesmaids' dresses.

Wright-Metzler Company in Uniontown has made emphatic price reductions to lower stocks before the workmen begin building two additional floors and making extensive alterations in June. Women's clothing and millinery in the two stores is identical and priced alike at both places. In these departments in the Connellsville store prices have been lowered to match those in Uniontown—a distinct service to a large clientele of buyers who shop between the two stores. Savings are as big here on certain dresses, suits, coats, waists and other aparel as in the other store—and the merchandise is equally new, fresh and fashionable. Today, following the price-change in Uniontown, the millinery store has to offer:

Our Newest $11.00 to $13.50 Hats are Now $10

Just arrived and in the styles to wear the summer through. Distinctive, full value millinery in Panama, hemp and split Milan. New color-tones—burnt, green, purple, and black and white. New trimming ideas worked out in ribbons, flowers, foliage, ostrich, pompoms, wings and stick-up conceits. Lovely hats, indeed, and only under-price to match those of Uniontown.

Other Hats in Late Style Trimmings for Women and Children

The new, smart-looking shapes; the newer color-effects and black. Trimmings of pompom flowers, ribbons, foliage and what not. Exquisite styles for children; becoming styles for women.

Brevities

—A big shipment of infants' and children's socks is ready for the moment you want little tots to go into strict summer comfort. Plain colors and ever so many fancy effects to harmonize with bright or delicate dress tones. Colors and designs are combined in a new and pleasing manner this year. Sizes are for tiny feet to the largest socks made for children. A pair, 25c.

Hosiery—First Floor.

—The vogue for ruffings has developed into a billowy mass of sheerness and dainty designs. The prettiest we've seen, so far, is ready, now, for viewing and choosing. White, cream, ecru and black, narrow to very wide. Nets, lawns, chiffon cloth, organdie, crepe de chine and shadow laces, plain or exquisitely patterned.

A yard, 25c, 35c and 50c.

Neckwear—First Floor.

—The fashion of wearing beads has veered to short strands, although the most extreme lengths are not passé by any means.

As the days become warmer, and coats are discarded, beads will be in greatest demand.

Rose beads, delicately scented, $1.25 to $6.00 for long or short strands. New colorings and odd shapes.

Black and colored beads—bright red to imitation pearl, 50c to $4.00 for long or short strands.

The variety here, we are told, is far ahead of any other stock in town we have newer colorings and more attractive kinds, inexpensively priced.

Jewelry—First Floor.

—The newest handkerchiefs for women and girls have a tiny edge of crochet softly tinted—lavender, blue, pink. On fine quality very sheer linen, each 25c.

Other dainty 'kerchiefs at 25c are: Lace edged, taped edged, hemstitched, embroidered corner.

Handkerchiefs—First Floor.

—New laces have come into the Dry Goods Store. Different from any previously shown. Shadow lace, plain net top lace, cluny, German and French Val. White, cream and ecru.

Trimmings—First Floor.

—Crepe textures for blouses will be the first choice of fashion-wise women.

—and the blouse must have a touch of colored embroidery. All over crepe, prettily embroidered in bright or sober colors, $1.25 to $2.50 a yard.

Sheer batistes, embroidered in colors, $1.25 and upward.

Wash Goods—First Floor.

Miss 1914 Girl Graduate: A Note

This store, inclined to the ideas and needs of the younger generation, gives full expression—with its larger, finer stocks—to a helpful interest in Fayette county graduates. We have made an extra effort to collect the wearthings and adornments that appeal strongest to refined, style-schooled tastes; and it's these things we urge you to see before final choice is made elsewhere.

Starting with sheer fabrics of unusual beauty, there are American and foreign weaves, all white or delicately touched with colored embroidery; and there are colored textures very distinctive, and of a fineness far beyond the best in other stores here. Naturally, all the needfuls for completing a garment—patterns to the smallest detail of trimming material, are in accord with the character of the goods.

The little individualities—hair adornments, toilet requisites, ribbon girdles, beads, inexpensive jewelry, gloves, neckwear, laces, mesh bags, silk hosiery, silk underwear and many other requirements of an elegant toilette—were chosen for their beauty, charm, splendid quality, fashion-perfection, exclusiveness and price-fairness. These things will be found in various parts of the dry goods store and in the second floor underwear section. Elsewhere in the building: Dainty footwear; lovely dresses (some specially priced); newest-style blouses and muslin wear. The millinery store is now in receipt of advance modes for all-summer wear—beautiful creations entirely different from the styles of a month ago.

Will you let us display these graduation requirements before you; and suggest as proper for Graduation Gifts, Parisian ivory, choice perfumes, fans, books and what not?

STEEL MERGER NEAR

Cambria and Pennsylvania Companies Likely to Combine.

A merger of the Cambria and Pennsylvania Steel Companies is near at hand, according to well-informed trade gossip. The election of William H. Donner as director of the Pennsylvania Steel Company, and his subsequent election as chairman of the board, ostensibly as a successor to the late George F. Baer, is expected to go through only upon an agreement for the sale of the Pennsylvania railroad's holdings in Pennsylvania Steel to the Frick-Donner group of Pittsburg capitalists.

The Pennsylvania railroad is also expected to divest itself of its holdings in the Cambria Steel Company and Donner will be the active head of both concerns.

Receiver Asked for Coal Company.

A receiver has been asked for the Fairmount & Baltimore Coal & Coke Company in Baltimore, recently by James C. Cobey, Frederick A. Husted, John S. Askey and Oliver T. Carmard, stockholders. That the company is insolvent is among the allegations in the bill of complaint. The company was incorporated in West Virginia, operates a mine at Clarksburg, W. Va., and had an authorized capital stock of $50,000.
